MUNROE REMANDED TO JAIL. Court Fixes Amount of Bond for Release at $10,000.

Lewis Mortimer Munroe of New York, who was arrested Tuesday evening on the charge of stealing a lot of jewelry valued at $8,000 from Mrs. Olivia Starring of No. 1336 Massachusetts avenue northwest, was today brought into the Police Court to face the accusation. Before the defendant was arraigned Prosecutor Mullowny stated to Judge Scott that he was not ready to go to trial and asked for a postponement of the hearing until tomorrow. The motion was vigorously opposed by Mr. A. S. Colyar of counsel for the defense, who wanted the case to go at once, and said he de-sired to file a motion to quash the war-

After considerable discussion Judge Scott announced that the hearing was post-poned in accordance with the wish of the government. The bond was fixed at $10,000, and the defendant was remanded to jail. In addition to the telegram received yesterday by Major Sylvester, superintendent of police, as published in The Star, that official last evening received information official last evening received information from several sources bearing on the identity of the accused, but this was of a conflicting character, and did not establish whether Munroe and Charles Rohan with the several aliases, already printed in connection with the case, are one and the same person. Major Sylvester received a letter from Captain Titus of the New York detective force, which states that there is no such firm as Cassee & Bart, No. 150 5th avenue, through whom Munroe claims to have secured patents. Munn & Co., 361 Broadway, New York, wrote that they have no record of any dealings with any such man during the past six or seven such man during the past six or seven years, and Mrs. Hoyt of East 29th street, New York, stated that Munroe engaged a room at her home last winter, but left a short time ago, stating that he was coming to Washington to live. The photograph of Rohan, which was taken in 1800, about the time the individual of that name was sent to Sing Sing, could not be iden-tified by Mrs. Hoyt, she stating that her boarder was clean shaven. Munroe wears

Two former officials of the Columbus, Ohio, penitentiary, who are now in government employ here, have, according to statements of the detectives, identified the Roban, and one of them, Mr. James Dod-son, who is now a messenger in the War Department, told Detective Sergeant Helan that after having seen Munroe in court to-day be would go on the other than day he would go on the stand, if asked to do so, and testify that the prisoner is the same man who was some years ago con-fined in the Ohio prison. This information was given to a Star reporter by Mr. Helan Major Sylvester today received a telegram from Warden Johnson of Sing Sing correcting his dispatch of yesterday so far as to say that the description of Rohan should have read "index finger of left hand mashed and withered." The police officials say that Munroe's left thumb is mashed and withered.

Opening of the Conference of Charities and Corrections.

WELCOMED BY MR. H. B. F. MACFARLAND

Addresses by Eminent Members of the Organization.

TWO COMMITTEES NAMED

The opening meeting of the twenty-eighth national conference of charities and corrections, held at Foundry Church last evening, was an indication of the highly-interesting work that will occupy the delegates during the coming week. The delegates were welcomed to the city and speeches were delivered, outlining the course that will be pursued during the conference. Commissioner H. B. F. Macfarland deliv-

the District of Columbia, and President Mc-Kinley sent a letter welcoming them on behalf of the nation and commending the work they are here to do.

The meeting followed an informal reception of the delegates, given at the Ebbitt House by the local committee of one hundred. At the conclusion of the reception the assembled company proceeded to Foundry M. E. Church. That large edifice could not hold the crowd that gathered there. The auditorium was very simply decorated, palms, dogwood blossoms and Easter lilies being tastefully arranged at the pulpit and in the choir loft.

Mr. B. T. Janney opened the meeting and spoke of the purposes of the conference. "It is particularly gratifying," he said, "to know there are those who do not pass on the other side when they meet suffering humanity, but who always strive to make somebody happied and more

49c. for Corsets regularly worth up to 75c. The choice embraces Girdle-striped Summer Corsets, made of fine netting, medium bust, short hip; also the new Straight-front Corsets of light-weight material, finished with embroidery, and the Empire Corsets, in medium and light weight. Our experts will fit you in the corsets best adapted to your figure. Choice of 4.9C. Welcomed by Mr. Macfarland. Mr. H. B. F. Macfarland, president of the Board of Commissioners, then welcomed the assemblage to the city on behalf of the local government.

"All that is best in the District of Columbia heartily welcomes this American con-blessed to give than to receive, but in this times even better to receive than to give. Many of fts have been waiting for your coming with keenness of expectation such as we are not want to feel in this city of conventions, where we are always welcoming guests. We remember the instruction and inspiration which came to us from your former visit in 1885, and all that we have obtained since, from time to time, through the increasing usefulness of this conference, which has gradually gained international reputation and influence. No community in the United States owes more to the influence of this conference, direct and indirect, than the District of Columbia. That we have now an organization of our public charity which, though incomplete, can be exhibited to you without re-gret, is due to the persistent efforts of men and women, members of your conference, imbued with the principles of the modern philanthropy.

"It is safe to say that they never would have persisted to success if they had not felt that they had the sympathy and sup-port of the members of this conference, all of them, in their turn, struggling, per-haps, under similar conditions to advance the same principles in other places. Thanks to these noble spirits, our arrangements for the outdoor relief of the poor have been raised to the plane of the best systems, and through our Associated Charities and its companion, the Central Relief Committee, our best citizens now accomplish twice as much good at half as much expense as in former days. The community has learned through the success of these agencies that the new philanthropy, combining knowl-edge with love, striving for prevention rather than mitigation and to promote selfhelp rather than helplessness, is at once more beneficent and more business-like than the old hit-and-miss, ignorant and sometimes unlovely charity.

Institutional Charity.

"It is learning, gradually, that the same principles can be, and ought to be, applied to public institutional charity. The Board of Children's Guardians, to whose care a constantly increasing number of dependent children have been committed since its creation, has demonstrated by self-sacrificing and intelligent fidelity that it ought to have the care of all children dependant upon the public bounty. In the process of evolution came the Board of Charities, evolution came the Board of Charities, which, since last July, has had supervision of all charitable institutions, supported in whole or in part by public funds, and which, under the act of Congress creating it, is to work out a harmonious system of institutional relief for all the dependents on the public. Its members, five of the busiest and best men in the District of Columbia, who have helped to make Associated Charities and the Central Re-lief Committee what they are, are working day and night at the great task set before them. Its accomplishment will be their monument.

"All this, and more, in spirit and in purpose, we gratefully acknowledge as due to the teachings of your conference, even though it has always been a true conference and has never adopted resolutions or tried to fasten its members to any plattried to fasten its memoers to any plat-form of theories. We are, therefore, grate-ful for the past, and for what we are ful for the past, and for what we are about to receive are already thankful. We expect to learn from you in a few days what it has taken you years to learn, and with it your latest experiences, your latest suggestions, your latest warnings. We are not of those who are satisfied with a bliss-(Continued on Twelfth Page.)
